Market News

SZSE Promulgated the Information Disclosure Guidelines for ChiNext-listed Companies in Internet Marketing Industry

In order to set a fair and unified evaluation standard, SZSE formulated the Guidelines by fully learning from the information disclosure experience of internet marketing companies at home and abroad after summarizing the common characteristics of internet marketing companies. The Guideline clearly defines the applicable scope, requires such listed companies to disclose the data or traffic conditions, technical indicators under different standards, transaction amount on their main cooperation platforms, and disclose revenue and purchase amount with different dimensions respectively in their annual and interim reports. In addition, the Guideline requires such listed companies to disclose interim reports in case of major changes in customer and media resources during daily operation. During the drafting process of the Guidelines, SZSE has solicited opinions from analysts from securities companies, related listed companies and more than 3000 investors.

Brilliance Technology (300542)

Brilliance Technology landed on ChiNext Market on September 20. The company principally engages in industrial application software development, software and hardware system integration and professional technical services. In 2015, its operating income reached RMB 414 million with the net profit of RMB 35.2 million.

First RMB Clearing Bank Established in the U.S.

The PBOC announced that Bank of China is designated as the RMB clearing bank in the United States on September 20. This represents another critical milestone in the process of RMB internationalization, and a step forward for Sino-U.S. financial cooperation. Previously in June this year, senior Chinese and U.S. officials endorsed a framework for facilitating RMB trading and clearing in the US for the first time during the eighth China-US Strategic and Economic Dialogue.

New Rules on China's Credit Default Swaps

The National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors (NAFMII) published credit default swaps (CDS) rules on September 24, which supervises the issuance of commercial paper and some other types of debt in China's interbank bond market. The formal launch of CDS is still on the way. NAFMII also released rules on credit linked notes
